

Develop and Implement an Attendance Review Board

- Schools could create a central attendance review board that ensures attendance procedures are followed, identifies at-risk students and meets with students and parents, and ensures legal requirements are followed.
- The attendance review board can be formatted as defined by the school, including:
 - ✓ Membership (administrator, school social worker, school counselor, special education staff, school nurse)
 - ✓ Time, location, and frequency of meetings
 - ✓ Whether students may sit on the board and what their role is
 - ✓ What actions the board may/must take

Establish and Intervention Schedule

- Early intervention should be a priority and focus on the root causes of chronic absenteeism.
- At absenteeism milestones designated by the school, intervene with concrete actions including but not limited to:
 - ✓ Defining at what stage letters are sent, phone calls are made, meetings are held, home visits are made, referrals to community services are made, a collaborative plan is created, an attendance advocate is assigned, etc.
 - ✓ Defining who is responsible to complete the actions listed above
 - ✓ Creating a system for documenting all absenteeism related contacts

Address Families with a History of Absenteeism/At-Risk Families

- In families where a student missed 20 days (or less if the school decides) in the previous school year, it is recommended that the school schedule a face-to-face meeting at the beginning of the school year to discuss attendance barriers that existed in the previous year and barriers that may continue in the current school year
- Create collaborative plan at the beginning of the school year
- Identify a staff member the family trusts or has a relationship with who can maintain contact with the family as the school year progresses and address attendance issues (possibly an Attendance Advocate/Mentor)

Attendance Advocate/Mentor

- Schools could designate staff that can act as Attendance Advocates/Mentors who can provide regular, frequent in-school support to the school and can maintain contact with the parents
- This could include use of an incentive system if appropriate
- This could include the use of support groups for students or parents if appropriate

Develop Collaborative Plans

- At a milestone designated by the school (recommended at no later than 10 unexcused days of school), the school should have a face-to-face meeting with the parent and student, where appropriate, to develop a written collaborative plan referred to in Nebraska Revised Statute 79-209(2)(b)
- A copy of this plan should be given to the student and parent, or mailed to the family if:
 - ✓ the meeting was conducted over the phone, or
 - ✓ despite the school's efforts to reach out to the parent and student, the parent and student did not attend the meeting
- Attendance review board should monitor compliance with the collaborative plan at intervals defined by the school.

Designate Staff to Connect Family to Services (mental health, economic, therapeutic, supportive, etc.)

- Schools could designate staff responsible for offering services and connecting families with service providers to address attendance barriers. Services could be either those available within the school or those out of the school to which the family needs to be referred (e.g. school social workers, school counselors, administrators, etc.)
- Staff should follow up with the family to ensure the family has been connected to the service and the family is following through with the service
